I am an African American only child from Rock Hill, SC. I graduated from Lake Pointe Academy in my hometown in May 2020 with distinction. While in high school, I participated in various sports and on the student service council for two years. As a member of student service council, I planned events for my high school and coordinated and participated in community service projects. I now pursue higher education at Elon University. At Elon, I am a campus tour guide and a member of the on-campus news organization, Elon News Network. As a member, I anchor, report, and work in the control room for our two live broadcast shows. In addition, I am an Elon Communications Fellow and mentor a first-year in the program.

My career goals are to become a broadcast journalist and a medical malpractice lawyer. I am a sophomore majoring in journalism and minoring in psychology at Elon University and intend on attending law school a few years after graduation. My plan is to become a news reporter and anchor. I intend to be the kind of journalist that is tirelessly engaged in the relentless pursuit and presentation of the facts. In order to achieve this goal, I plan to work hard while using all of the resources at my disposal to improve my writing and presentation skills.

Another goal of mine is to become a medical malpractice lawyer. In law school, I will use the research and writing skills learned from my journalism and psychology studies while gaining knowledge from experienced law professors. The crucial information, instruction, and insights gained from my law school instructors will allow me to have the opportunity to qualify for various internships. As a result of my hard work and determination, I plan to graduate from law school, acquire an attorney position, work to climb the corporate ladder, and eventually become a sought-after medical malpractice lawyer while helping others.

When people hear that I am majoring in journalism but want to attend law school, they are confused. But, what they don't understand is that the degrees complement each other. I aspire to be a legal correspondent and practice law which will successfully merge the two degrees.

After graduation, I'll have over one hundred thousand dollars of school debt. The fifteen hundred dollar scholarship will help cover a small portion of that. It will also help me achieve my educational goals and pursue my career as a journalist and medical malpractice lawyer.

I plan to work after earning my undergraduate degree so I can pay off my student loans to Elon and save up money for law school. I don't want the lack of funds to prevent me from being able to attend law school. The more scholarship money I obtain now, the more I will be able to reduce the amount of undergraduate student loans I have to pay back later.

Please accept my recommendation for Chloe Franklin as she applies for the 2022 scholarship from the Radio Television Digital News Association of the Carolinas. I have worked with Chloe over the past two years as her adviser to Elon News Network, the converged student news media at Elon University.

Most of my experiences with Chloe have been in a journalism context, and I can attest to her interpersonal communications and project management skills. I probably see this most acutely in her role as an anchor at ENN. She approaches her tasks methodically, strategically and realistically in order to create the best possible product.

Chloe — at least on paper — just seems too good to be true. Rarely does a student excel in every aspect of her academic, professional and co-curricular career. She performs well in classes while excelling in student media and other organizations across campus. Her accomplishments at such a young age, frankly, are intimidating.

They are intimidating, at least, until you meet her, because Chloe is incredibly kind and generous. She elevates the conversation whenever she enters the room — not just because of her level-headed demeanor, but also because of her thoughtfulness and maturity that are well beyond her years.

In her roles at student media, she is among our most accomplished and natural on-air talents. Watching her on television feels like inviting a good friend over to the house to talk about the day's events. But more than being just charismatic, she's a savvy writer with keen news judgment. She edits her copy and her video extraordinarily well, with a sharp eye toward engaging the viewer.

In short, Chloe is the kind of student we never want to see leave.

I'm happy to answer any additional questions about Chloe (540-200-8665 or kfurnas@elon.edu), and I wish you the best of luck in your decision-making process.

Sincerely,

Kelly Furnas

To Whom It May Concern:

It is my great pleasure to recommend Chloe Franklin for the RTDNAC scholarship. I have known Chloe since she started at Elon last school year. In that time, I have worked closely with her in my role as advisor to our television newscast. She has also been a student in my class. Chloe is smart, talented, and engaged.

In her time working in student media, Chloe has been a reporter, producer, and anchor at Elon Local News. She knows how to take direction and understands that every job is important. Chloe is unafraid of hard work and cheerfully accepts any job, large or small. She routinely puts herself outside her comfort zone to try new things. Chloe is unafraid of hard work, does well, takes criticism without hesitation, and always strives to improve her work. She is a key member of the news organization and attempts to make sure her work meets a professional standard. Chloe is well respected by her peers and her professors.

Chloe is currently in my broadcast news writing course. This course concentrates on radio journalism, emphasizing interviews, natural sound, and radio news writing. The course is very challenging. Chloe is excelling in this course, displaying a great talent for broadcast journalism. It is clear that she has a very bright future.

Students can be taught many different skills, but it is difficult to teach passion. Chloe has great passion for journalism and that is on display in the classroom and the newsroom. I wish our newsroom was full of students like her. She is well deserving of the RTDNAC scholarship.

Sincerely,
